ABSTRACT

Based on a survey conducted by the American Association of Junior Colleges (AAJC), this directory provides information on 719 non-profit, public and private two-year colleges in the United States and its territories, including statistics on 1963-64 enrollments and personnel. Following material on the scope and compilation of the directory, observations on the data are made. Next, the directory lists the colleges alphabetically by state, including the following information for each: location; chief administrative head; AAJC membership; state recognition or accrediting agency; co-educational or single-sex status; type of control or affiliation; October 1963 enrollment of full- and part-time freshman, sophomores, and unclassified students; October 1963, summer 1963, and October 1964 total enrollments; and full- and part-time instructional and administrative faculty in 1963-64. Statewide enrollment summaries are then provided for all institutions and public and independent colleges, followed by tables showing distribution of size of enrollment, independent and church-related colleges by type of control or affiliation, and accredited schools by state. Information on changes in institutions since the previous year, the AAJC, and junior college organizations is presented in the final sections.

INTRODUCTION

America's institutions of higher education have grown to accept as a fact of life that there will be increasing demands for entry into college, that enrollments will continue to spiral, that facilities will have to be expanded. Nowhere is this more true than in the junior college field.

This is clearly borne out in the data collected for the 1965 Junior College Directory. Opening fall enrollments for 1964 totaled 1,043,963 compared to about 902,000 reported for fall, 1963—an increase of nearly sixteen percent. Moreover, the Directory contains the names of forty-one institutions not included in the 1964 report. There are a total of 719 institutions listed.

The 1965 Junior College Directory contains information on accreditation, control, types of institutions, student enrollments, and administrative and instructional staff. Summary tables provide information, by state, on all junior colleges, public junior colleges, and private junior colleges. Shown also are the distribution of size of enrollments, the number of independent and church-related junior colleges by type of affiliation or control, and the number of colleges accredited by regional associations.

Enrollment figures in the directory, based on information provided by questionnaires returned by the colleges, include only those students who registered for college credit. Junior colleges also enrolled many students for study without credit. In addition to opening fall enrollment figures for 1964, the report contains detailed information on enrollments from June 1963 through May 1964.

Additional information about junior colleges may be found in the sixth edition of American Junior Colleges (1963), edited by Edmund J. Gleazer, Jr., and published by the American Council on Education, 1785 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. The American Association of Junior Colleges follows the criteria of American Junior Colleges in ascertaining those colleges to be included in the Directory. Thus, the institutions included were selected on the basis of information obtained from the country's six regional accrediting associations, state universities, state departments of education, and the Engineers' Council for Professional Development.

The office of public information of the American Association of Junior Colleges collected and analyzed data, edited and produced the Directory. Directory staff includes the director of public information, and Sheila Kirschbaum and Janice Packard, information associates. The staff acknowledges the cooperation of the junior colleges that responded to the survey for meeting necessary deadlines and providing accurate information.
